2) Which of the following requires working together to meet complex challenges and is a key skill in a wide variety of professions?

- A) Collaboration
- B) Committees
- C) Participative management
- D) Groupthink
- E) Agendas

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Collaboration is working together to meet complex challenges and is a prime skill expected in a wide range of professions. It's a virtual guarantee that you will need to collaborate in at least some of your work activities.

4) Which of the following is one of the advantages of using cross-functional teams for problem solving?

- A) They have a long life span and can become part of the organization
- B) The diversity of opinions and experiences can lead to better decisions
- C) They can lead to increased participative management
- D) There can be increased harmony as decisions are over-simplified
- E) There will be clearly developed norms and standards of conduct

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Problem-solving teams and task forces assemble to resolve specific issues and then disband when their goals have been accomplished. Such teams are often cross-functional, pulling together people from a variety of departments who have different areas of expertise and responsibility. The diversity of opinions and experiences can lead to better decisions, but competing interests can lead to tensions that highlight the need for effective communication.

10) Which type of team member role is most likely to work to help a team reach its goals?

- A) Team maintenance
- B) Performing
- C) Self-oriented
- D) Diverting
- E) Task-oriented

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Most likely to contribute to team goals are members who assume team-maintenance roles to help everyone work well together and those who assume task-oriented roles to help the team reach its goals.

11) Which of the following is NOT a way that teams help organizations to succeed?

- A) Increase information and knowledge
- B) Increase groupthink among members
- C) Increase performance levels
- D) Increase diversity of views

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Groupthink is the harmful tendency within groups that pressures members to conform to the majority or a few influential leaders. Increasing groupthink would decrease the likelihood of success for a team.

12) In a functional team-maintenance role, what do members use to offer verbal and nonverbal support to seek input from other team members?

- A) Encouragement
- B) Compromise
- C) Procedure setting
- D) Control
- E) Harmonizing

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Functional team members who work in team-maintenance roles use encouragement to draw out other members by showing verbal and nonverbal support, praise, or agreement.

13) Groupthink refers to

- A) the willingness of individual group members to withhold contrary or unpopular opinions, even when those objections are legitimate, and to favor majority opinion.
- B) the four-step decision-making process in groups.
- C) software programs that help groups make decisions.
- D) the basic rules that underlie a group's behavior and guide the group to make its decisions.

Answer: A

Explanation: A) When groupthink occurs, all group members tend to agree with the consensus. Groupthink arises when group members see little to gain and a lot to risk in expressing opinions that are not congruent with the prevailing views of the group.

14) During what phase of team evolution do team members discuss their opinions on a topic and become assertive in establishing their roles?

- A) Orientation
- B) Conflict
- C) Brainstorming
- D) Emergence
- E) Reinforcement

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Team members begin to discuss their positions and become more assertive in establishing their roles. Disagreements and uncertainties are natural in this phase.

15) A hidden agenda refers to

- A) a meeting agenda that is not revealed to others outside the meeting group.
- B) individuals harboring motives, which they conceal from the rest of the group.
- C) an agenda that members must look for before they can attend a meeting.
- D) an approach to group dynamics that helps facilitate group functioning.

Answer: B

Explanation: B) A hidden agenda is an unexpressed plan that is harbored by one member of the group but unknown to the rest of the group. An example of a hidden agenda would be a team member who conceals his plans to depose the group leader and take over leadership of the group.

16) Which of the following approaches to conflict will allow all sides to satisfy at least part of their goals, and minimize losses for everyone?

- A) Brainstorming
- B) Groupthink
- C) Win-win
- D) Win-lose
- E) Lose-lose

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Destructive conflict can lead to win-lose or lose-lose outcomes, in which one or both sides lose to the detriment of the entire team. If you approach conflict with the idea that both sides can satisfy their goals to at least some extent (a win-win strategy), you can minimize losses for everyone.

17) Which of the following best describes proactive behavior as a way to successfully resolve conflict?

- A) Have those involved in the conflict discuss issues on a regular basis
- B) Encourage members to get feelings out in the open
- C) Identify factual reasons for the source of the conflict
- D) Deal with minor conflicts before they become major issues
- E) Insist on fair outcomes instead of following the rules

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Proactive behavior requires members to deal with minor conflict before it becomes major conflict. In team settings, conflict between two people can spread if it isn't addressed early.

18) Group members who are motivated mainly to fulfill personal needs play a

- A) team-maintenance role.
- B) task-facilitating role.
- C) self-oriented role.
- D) coordinating role.

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Self-oriented group members who aren't motivated by group goals tend to be unproductive and can often drag a group into being dysfunctional.

19) If group members seem resistant to change, which of the following will encourage them to share their concerns?

- A) Brainstorm
- B) Use constructive criticism
- C) Encourage flexibility
- D) Form an alliance
- E) Listen

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Rather than pushing even harder, stop talking and start listening. Let people express their reservations about the change, using the active listening skills.

- A) conflict phase
- B) reinforcement phase
- C) orientation phase
- D) brainstorming phase

Answer: A

Explanation: A) In the conflict phase of the group-development process, different opinions and perspectives begin to emerge. During orientation, team members get to know one another. Roles are established during orientation, and group members begin developing group norms and goals.

28) What can be done to show team members you are listening when they are resistant to ideas or change?

Answer: Whenever you encounter resistance, your first instinct might be to argue even more forcefully for the proposed change. However, this approach is often counterproductive because it doesn't get at the roots of the resistance, and the other party is likely to dig in even deeper. Rather than pushing even harder, stop talking and start listening. Let people express their reservations about the change, using the active listening skills. Make sure the other party knows you are listening by choosing your nonverbal gestures carefully and expressing interest in and sympathy for their concerns. Listening encourages others to open up about their concerns which can help you address them and can unveil legitimate issues that you have failed to consider.

When a line of communication opens, recognize that your primary goal is not to win the argument but rather to build a relationship that can lead to solving the dilemma at hand. Even if you have the authority to force the change, you'll create resentment and probably fail to get the level of emotional agreement needed for true success if you rely on force alone. As you establish a comfortable working relationship, continue to listen for elements of resistance that remain unspoken. Ask questions to make sure you understand the resistance and to confirm your understanding of it, then acknowledge the other party's concerns.

29) Identify the seven steps that can help minimize conflict in team settings.

Answer: • Proactive behavior. Deal with minor conflict before it becomes major conflict. In team settings, conflict between two people can spread if it isn't addressed early.

- Communication. Get those directly involved in a conflict to participate in resolving it. These participants should choose their words and nonverbal gestures carefully in order to maintain focus on the problem at hand and to avoid further inflaming an already uncomfortable situation.
- Openness. Get feelings out in the open before dealing with the main issues.
- Research. Seek factual reasons for a problem before seeking solutions.
- Flexibility. Don't let anyone lock into a position before considering other solutions.
- Fair play. Insist on fair outcomes and don't let anyone avoid a fair solution by hiding behind the rules.
- Alliance. Get opponents to fight together against an "outside force" instead of against each other.

- A) Shared workspaces
- B) Virtual communities
- C) Communities of practice
- D) Unified communication
- E) Groupware

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Teams and other work groups can take advantage of a set of broader technologies often referred to as groupware or collaboration platforms. These technologies let people communicate, share files, review previous message threads, work on documents simultaneously, and connect using social networking tools. These systems help companies capture and share knowledge from multiple experts, bringing greater insights to bear on tough challenges.

- A) Virtual offices
- B) Wikis
- C) Clouds
- D) Communities of practice
- E) Unified communications

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Shared workspaces are online "virtual offices" that give everyone on a team access to the same set of resources and information. You may see some of these workspaces referred to as intranets (restricted-access websites that are open to employees only) or extranets (restricted sites that are available to employees and to outside parties by invitation only).

- 41) When composing collaborative messages, the best strategy is to
- A) assign the writing task to one person or divide larger projects among multiple writers.
 - B) begin by letting all members "do their own thing" and then seeing what they all produce.
 - C) let all members use their own preferred software.
 - D) make the team as large as possible so that every possible area of expertise will be covered.

Answer: A

Explanation: A) The actual composition is the only part of developing team messages that does not usually benefit from group participation. For longer projects, it's efficient to plan, research, and outline together; however, assign the task of writing to one person or divide larger projects among multiple writers. If you divide the writing, try to have one person do a final revision pass to ensure a consistent style.

- A) allow employees to develop new workplace skills.
- B) encourage disgruntled employees to vent their frustrations.
- C) discourage socializing so that individual employees can get their work done.
- D) link employees to others with similar professional interests throughout the organization.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Some companies use social networking technologies to create virtual communities of practice that link employees with similar professional interests throughout a company; they sometimes link employees with customers and suppliers, as well. Sites such as LinkedIn and Xing link people together in a particular business community. For example, professional orchestra musicians may keep in touch with one another and the trends and opportunities in their vocation through LinkedIn, monitoring such things as job opportunities, concert schedules, and gossip on their virtual community.

49) Discuss the concept of unified communication as it applies to mobile communication and collaboration.

Answer: Today's mobile systems can do virtually everything that fixed-web collaboration systems can do, from writing on virtual whiteboards to sharing photos, videos, and other multimedia files. Therefore, they add another layer of options for collaborative writing and other communication projects, particularly when used with cloud computing. Given the flexibility of mobile devices, however, an important aspect of mobile collaboration and communication in general is unified communication, which integrates such capabilities as voice and video calling/conferencing, instant messaging, and real-time collaboration software in a single system. By minimizing or eliminating the need to manage multiple communication systems and devices, unified communication can improve response times, productivity, and collaboration.

Answer: Mobile devices add another layer of options for collaborative writing and other communication projects, particularly when used with cloud computing. Today's mobile systems can do virtually everything that fixed-web collaboration systems can do, from writing on virtual whiteboards to sharing photos, videos, and other multimedia files. Mobility lets workers participate in online brainstorming sessions, seminars, and other formal or informal events from wherever they happen to be at the time. This flexibility can be particularly helpful during the review and production stages of major projects, when deadlines are looming and decisions and revisions need to be made quickly.

52) Discuss the difference between constructive and destructive feedback and include suggestions for making feedback more meaningful.

Answer: Good feedback provides a valuable opportunity to learn and to improve the quality of your work. Constructive feedback, sometimes called constructive criticism, focuses on the process and outcomes of communication, not on the people involved. In contrast, destructive feedback delivers criticism with no guidance to stimulate improvement. For example, "This proposal is a confusing mess, and you failed to convince me of anything" is destructive feedback. The goal is to be more constructive: "Your proposal could be more effective with a clearer description of the manufacturing process and a well-organized explanation of why the positives outweigh the negatives." When giving feedback, avoid personal attacks and give the person clear guidelines for improvement.

- A) preparing carefully.
- B) conducting the meeting efficiently.
- C) using meeting technologies wisely.
- D) all of the above.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Meetings can be a waste of time if they aren't planned and managed well. You can help ensure productive meetings by preparing carefully, conducting meetings efficiently, and using meeting technologies wisely. Before the meeting begins, carefully select participants, identify the purpose of the meeting, and set the meeting's location and agenda. - A) before the meeting.
- B) at the start of the meeting.
- C) during the meeting.
- D) after the meeting.

Answer: A

Explanation: A) The success of a meeting depends on the preparation of the participants. Therefore, distribute the agenda before the meeting begins, being sure to allow participants sufficient time to prepare for the meeting. Allow participants to review the meeting agenda before the meeting begins. That way, they can have the option of doing some preparing of their own for the meeting, which may include researching, compiling data, or preparing documents.

- A) tends to slow meetings down.
- B) contributes to dissent among participants.
- C) helps meetings run more smoothly.
- D) is only useful for meetings with more than a dozen participants.

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Parliamentary procedure is a tried-and-true method of running a meeting. Using parliamentary procedure often eliminates conflicts and minimizes resentment and misunderstandings. The advantage of parliamentary procedure is that it is a set of rules that everyone understand to be fair so there are no debates about how to resolve issues.

- A) don't interfere if the discussion departs from the goals of the meeting.
- B) allow introverted participants to disengage from the meeting.
- C) try to simply act as an observer, and let the meeting "run itself."
- D) do none of the above.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Effective meeting leaders keep the discussion on track, follow agreed-upon rules, encourage participation, participate actively, and close effectively. In meetings, it is natural for some people to be more involved and for some people to dominate the discourse. However, when extremes of these trends occur, the person running the meeting must take action. A participant may be fairly quiet during the meeting, for example, but it is not acceptable for that person to be completely disengaged. Similarly, a dominant participant who lets no one else get a word in edgewise must be managed, or the meeting will produce no meaningful results.

- D) Tweeting key points from a convention speech

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Tweeting key points from a convention speech or using your phone or tablet to jot down essential ideas and follow-up questions can be productive and respectful ways to use a device during a meeting. 75) Discuss four planning tasks when preparing for meetings.

Answer: First, define your purpose. Meetings can focus on exchanging information, reaching decisions, or collaborating to solve problems or identify opportunities. Whatever your purpose, define the best possible result of the meeting (such as "we carefully evaluated all three product ideas and decided which one to invest in"). Use this hoped-for result to shape the direction and content of the meeting.

Second, select participants for the meeting. The rule here is simple: Invite everyone who really needs to be involved, and don't invite anyone who doesn't. For decision-making meetings, for example, invite only those people who are in a direct position to help the meeting reach its objective. The more people you have, the longer it will take to reach consensus. Meetings with more than 10 or 12 people can become unmanageable if everyone is expected to participate in the discussion and decision making.

Third, choose the venue and the time. Online meetings are often the best way and sometimes the only way to connect people in multiple locations or to reach large audiences. For in-person meetings, review the facility and the seating arrangements. Is theater-style seating suitable, or do you need a conference table or some other layout? Pay attention to room temperature, lighting, ventilation, acoustics, and refreshments; these details can make or break a meeting. If you have control over the timing, morning meetings are often more productive because people are generally more alert and not yet engaged with the work of the day.

Fourth, set the agenda. The success of a meeting depends on the preparation of the participants. Distribute a carefully written agenda to participants, giving them enough time to prepare as needed (see Figure 2.4 in the text). A productive agenda answers three key questions: (1) What do we need to do in this meeting to accomplish our goals? (2) What issues will be of greatest importance to all participants? (3) What information must be available in order to discuss these issues?

Answer: One of the newest virtual tools is online brainstorming, in which companies conduct "idea campaigns" to generate ideas from people across the organization. Another example is groupware, an umbrella term for systems that let people communicate, share files, present materials, and work on documents simultaneously. Shared workspaces are "virtual offices" that give everyone on a team access to a variety of materials. Videoconferencing combines audio communication with live video, enabling team members to see each other, demonstrate products, and transmit other visual information. Web-based meeting systems allow teams to collaborate in real time simply by logging on from any computer or smartphone from almost anywhere in the world.

86) Discuss the additional elements of planning that are involved in virtual meetings.

Answer: Conducting successful virtual meetings requires extra planning beforehand and more diligence during the meeting. Recognizing the limitations of the virtual meeting format is a key to using it successfully. Because virtual meetings offer less visual contact and nonverbal communication than in-person meetings, for example, leaders need to make sure everyone stays engaged and has the opportunity to contribute. Participants have a responsibility to pay attention and avoid the temptation to work on other tasks. To keep everyone focused, make sure the meeting time is dedicated to discussion and interaction, rather than getting everyone up to speed on the issues. Distribute background information before the meeting so that participants can join the meeting ready to collaborate.

115) Discuss ways to retain information when the information is important and might be used later.

Answer: If the information you hear will be important to use later, write it down or otherwise record it. Don't rely on your memory. If you do need to memorize, you can hold information in short-term memory by repeating it silently or organizing a long list of items into several shorter lists. To store information in long-term memory, four techniques can help: (1) associate new information with something closely related (such as the restaurant in which you met a new client), (2) categorize the new information into logical groups (such as alphabetizing a list of names), (3) visualize words and ideas as pictures, and (4) create mnemonics such as acronyms or rhymes.

Those include:

Listen actively.

Take careful and complete notes, when applicable.

Make frequent eye contact with the speaker (depends on culture to some extent).

Stay focused on the speaker and the content.

Mentally paraphrase key points to maintain attention level and ensure comprehension. Adjust listening style to the situation.

Give the speaker nonverbal cues (such as nodding to show agreement or raising eyebrows to show surprise or skepticism).

Save questions or points of disagreement until an appropriate time.

Overlook stylistic differences and focus on the speaker's message.

Make distinctions between main points and supporting details.

Look for opportunities to learn.

117) Identify and explain the five steps in the listening process.

Answer:

1. Receiving. You start by physically hearing the message and acknowledging it. Physical reception can be blocked by noise, impaired hearing, or inattention. Some experts also include nonverbal messages as part of this stage because these factors influence the listening process as well.

2. Decoding. Your next step is to assign meaning to sounds, which you do according to your own values, beliefs, ideas, expectations, roles, needs, and personal history.

3. Remembering. Before you can act on the information, you need to store it for future processing. Incoming messages must first be captured in short-term memory before being transferred to long-term memory for more permanent storage.

4. Evaluating. The next step is to evaluate the message by applying critical thinking skills to separate fact from opinion and evaluate the quality of the evidence.

5. Responding. After you've evaluated the speaker's message, you react. If you're communicating one-on-one or in a small group, the initial response generally takes the form of verbal feedback. If you're one of many in an audience, your initial response may take the form of applause, laughter, or silence. Later on, you may act on what you have heard.

139) Which of the following is an important etiquette guideline when you are representing your company online?

- A) Only use personal attacks on blog postings and social media sites
- B) Strongly state your opinions so they sound like facts
- C) Use texting style whenever possible to keep messages short and to the point
- D) Assume corporate networks are private
- E) Stay focused on the original topic; if you need to change the subject, start a new message thread

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Stay focused on the original topic. If you want to change the subject of an email exchange, a forum discussion, or a blog comment thread, start a new message.

140) Which of these is an important online etiquette rule?

- A) Use commenting mechanisms whenever possible
- B) Send messages when it works best for you, knowing the audience will respond when convenient
- C) Use "Reply All" whenever possible
- D) Assume a message sent to one recipient will remain private
- E) Avoid multitasking while using IM

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Avoid multitasking while using IM and other tools. You might think you're saving time by doing a dozen things at once, but you're probably making the other person wait while you bounce back and forth between IM and your other tasks.

142) When using digital media, how can you be sure you are presenting facts instead of your opinion?

- A) Include links to Wikis
- B) Include supporting evidence
- C) Open a discussion forum
- D) Assume others will view the message
- E) Avoid text language

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Don't present opinions as facts, and support facts with evidence. This guideline applies to all communication, of course, but online venues in particular seem to tempt people into presenting their beliefs and opinions as unassailable truths.

- A) The best time to return your call
- B) Detail questions or instruction
- C) Who else you are calling
- D) A list of all issues that need to be covered
- E) A specific date and time when you will try to call again

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Leave your name, number (don't assume the recipient has caller ID), reason for calling, and times you can be reached. State your name and telephone number slowly so the other person can easily write them down; repeat both if the other person doesn't know you.

- A) women are not expected to shake hands.
- B) it is not necessary to stand up before shaking hands if you are already seated.
- C) shaking hands is an outdated custom in North America.
- D) a firm handshake is expected when two people meet.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Note that the firm handshake is not universal, but instead particular to North America. When you're expected to shake hands, keep in mind that a passive "dead fish" handshake will create a negative impression.

150) When you're using a mobile device, making any of the following choices EXCEPT _____ will reflect negatively on your professionalism.

- A) talking loudly in open offices or public places
- B) texting during a meal or while someone is talking to you
- C) allowing incoming calls/texts to interrupt meetings or discussions
- D) asking for permission before using your device's camera

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Using a mobile device in any of the following ways will reflect negatively upon you: talking loudly in open offices or public places, ignoring privacy concerns by using your phone's camera without permission, or using your device in restrooms and other inappropriate places. Texting during a meal or conversation and allowing incoming calls to interrupt meetings or discussions will also cast doubt on your professionalism.

156) Discuss etiquette rules that should always be followed when doing business online.

Answer: Avoid personal attacks and stay focused on the original topic. Don't present opinions as facts and support facts with evidence. Basic expectations of spelling, punctuation, and capitalization should be followed. Virus protection should be used and kept up to date.

Additionally, use difficult-to-break passwords on email, Twitter, and other accounts. Ask if this is a good time for an IM chat and avoid multitasking while using IM and other tools. Watch your language and keep your emotions under control. Never assume privacy and don't use "Reply All" in email unless everyone can benefit from your reply. Respect boundaries of time and virtual space. Don't waste others' time with sloppy, confusing, or incomplete messages. Lastly, be careful of online commenting mechanisms.

157) Identify and discuss five tips that can help you use the phone confidently and professionally.

Answer: When you're using the phone at work, you have to rely on your attitude and tone of voice to convey confidence and professionalism. Here are some tips that can help: Be conscious of how your voice sounds. Avoid monotone; vary your pitch and inflections. Slow down when talking with people whose native language isn't the same as yours. Be courteous when you call someone. Identify yourself and your organization, briefly explain why you're calling, verify that you've called at a good time, and minimize the noise level in your environment. Convey a positive, professional attitude when you answer the phone. Answer promptly (with a smile), and identify yourself and your company. Determine the caller's needs by asking, "How may I help you?" If you can't answer the caller's questions, forward the call to a colleague who can or tell the caller how to get his or her questions resolved. If you plan to forward a call, put the caller on hold and verify that the colleague is available. Close in a positive manner and double-check all vital information. Use your own voicemail features to help callers. Record a brief, professional-sounding outgoing message for regular use. When you'll be away from the phone for an extended period, record a temporary greeting that tells callers when you'll respond to messages. If you don't check your messages regularly or at all, disable your voicemail. Be considerate when leaving voicemail messages. Unless voicemail is the best or only choice, consider leaving a message through other means, such as text messaging or email. If you leave a voicemail, keep it brief: your name, number, reason for calling, and times you can be reached.

158) How can you prepare to have good etiquette and manners in social settings?

Answer: Make sure your appearance and actions are appropriate to the situation. Get to know the customs of other cultures when it comes to meeting new people. When introducing yourself, include a brief description of your role in the company. When introducing two other people, speak their first and last names clearly and then try to offer some information (perhaps a shared professional interest) to help the two people ease into a conversation. Business is often conducted over meals, and knowing the basics of dining etiquette will make you more effective in these situations. Remember that business meals are a forum for business. Don't discuss politics, religion, or any other topic likely to stir up emotions. Don't complain about work, don't ask deeply personal questions, avoid profanity, and be careful with humor.
